

Amanda Richardson started her boot shop at her home near Sturgis, SD, as the Ace High Custom Boots and Repair in January 2012. In 2013 she went into partnership with her mother, Cindy Richardson, in Ace High Creations and are making handmade purses. As someone who wears boots, rides horses and spends most of her time on her feet, her mission with her business was to provide quality repair work and boots that you can wear all day. She has begun working with Sturgis Chiropractic and testing her “corrective shoeing” techniques on individuals that have an uneven walk. You may contact Amanda at:

Sorrel Muscat grew up just outside of Wall, SD. She started out with leather work while living in Australia, but a few years later began beading to compliment her leather and it quickly became her passion. She draws inspiration from anything and everything around her, especially western and Plains Indians designs, both modern and traditional. Her motto is, “Appeal to your inner wild child”, and lives up to it! You may contact Sorrel at:

McKenzi Digby was born and raised on a ranch in the eastern plains of Colorado. She has always expressed herself through music, drawing, painting, and leatherwork. After obtaining her Bachelor’s degree from the University of Wyoming in Animal Science, her love of the west and desire to preserve the way of the cowboy, along with requests for her pieces by the ranching community, led her to focus in belt-making and other accessories. Her admiration of the works of Charles M. Russell and Will James, and the American Cowboy culture is depicted in her colorful, vintage inspired creations. You may contact McKenzi at:

Timber Tuckness comes from a long line of rodeo artists and performers. When he was growing up on his grandfather’s ranch in the Blue Mountains of Washington state, the whole family was involved in rodeo. Along with rodeo, each person in the family has their own talent as an artist from painting, poetry and photography with a western theme. Timber has combined the family’s talents of art, rodeo and his western lifestyle in his photos, art, poems and songs he writes and sings. Living in Meeteetse, Wyoming now, he carries on his western roots. Stop by his booth and listen to a song or poem and look at his art photos of rodeo and the western lifestyle, or have him tell you a funny rodeo story, because he still works full time as a pro rodeo clown.
